The requirements of competitors notwithstanding there have been numerous cases in our history where producers of superior products lost out to competitors who had a better way of marketing their products (remember Beta vs. VHS for example) Microsoft has simply found better ways to make their products number one even in the face of other developers products that have been reported to be superior. It s time for the Justice Department courts and other legal entities to stop wasting so much effort and resources on Microsoft and other legal businesses such as big tobacco especially in light of their failure to go after illegal activities such as a political party and administration that accepted campaign funds from foreign entities then gave them nuclear secrets in return. It s time to call the whole Microsoft thing off and get on with issues that are really threatening the people of this country. Microsoft made computer ownership and use affordable for all of us. Punish them? Why?
